Temperance Meetings.

We are requested to state that Mr. Prospect Perpetual Abstinence Society will meet at Nether's School House, on Thursday, the 9th September inst., and at the Camp Ground on the 24th Saturday in September. Speakers have been invited and may be expected at each meeting.

It will also be seen, by reference to a notice in another column, that a meeting will be held at Rossville, on Saturday, the 11th inst., for the purpose of organizing a total Abstinence Society, in connection with Rossville Division Sons of Temperance.

New Post Office.

A Post Office has been established in this District called Lorryville, and Maj. J. G. Lowry appointed Post Master. It is on the line of the King's Mountain Rail Road.

Tremendous Freshet.

We noticed yesterday (says the Carolinian of the 28th ult.) that we had a storm, accompanied with rain, on Friday night. The quantity of water that must have fallen above this place must have been much larger than what fell here. On Saturday morning the river began to rise, and on Sunday morning it was evident that we would have a destructive freshet. The river continued to rise all day, and its surface was strewn with wrecks and timber, showing that great damage had been sustained above. The bridge known as Broad River bridge, was carried off early in the day, and serious apprehensions were felt for the Columbia bridge to one o'clock on Monday morning, the water continuing to rise until that hour. It was then ascertained that it was five feet higher than the great flood of May, 1840, the largest freshet which had occurred to our river within the memory of man.

The flood remained stationary for some hours after one o'clock yesterday morning, when it began to subside, and by 10 o'clock it had fallen twelve inches. Large numbers of our citizens were congregated on the banks during Sunday afternoon and evening, and there were few who did not believe the bridge would be carried off. The noble structure, however, still stands a monument to the skill of the architect who planned and executed the work. The waters came up over a portion of the bridge on the north side, and the flood beat against the weather boarding on the same side for many hours, but apparently without any effect. It is said the western abutment of the bridge is considerably damaged by washing. The destruction of property, crops, mills, and mill-dams, stock, &c., must be immense, but we trust that the planters on the banks will have sufficient warning to remove their stock and their movable property placed out of danger. As yet we have heard of no extensive damage except the destruction of the Broad River bridge. It was rumored yesterday that the fine bridge erected by the Greenville Railroad Company had been carried away, but up to the time we write, we could not trace the rumor to any authentic source. We learn that the storm of Friday night was very severe to the east of us, in the neighborhood of Camden, tearing up trees, fences, &c. Some fears are entertained for the safety of the Camden bridge, and the travel on the line of the Camden Railroad over the Western swamp. The Greenville Railroad, we fear, has suffered to a great extent. The cars have not arrived from the head of the road since Friday morning. Experienced planters and others well acquainted with the ravages of floods estimate the destruction of property by this at from four to six millions of dollars.

LATER.—The cars from Charleston reached here a little after six o'clock last evening. We learn by passengers that about a quarter past two o'clock the railroad bridge over the Congaree was swept away. Passengers came across in boats.

We learn that the Greenville railroad bridge at Allston, was partially carried off—the three centre arches giving way, leaving a space on each side of the river. Some of the buildings and warehouses at Allston, were also destroyed. Telegraphic communication is interrupted South and North, beyond Raleigh.

It is reported from Augusta that the bridge there has been swept off, and that some of the streets of that city are submerged several feet.

Correspondence of Palmetto Standard.

CHARLESTON, Aug. 28, 1852.

We have not had any rain for three days, which is the longest drought we have had for some months. The still, sultry weather, and the fact of raising some dim clouds of war upon the sidewalks, but the middle of the streets will muddy. As the rain diminishes, the heat increases, and the last few days have been of the genuine summer temperature. We are, as yet, free from any semblance of an epidemic, and a fortnight more will place us beyond danger for this season. Take it all in all, the past summer has been one of the most pleasant and healthy that we have enjoyed for several—the pleasant temperature was occasional, no doubt, by the frequency and long continuance of the cool refreshing showers, with which we have been blessed through the entire season.

The interest elicited by the approaching election for Mayor is absorbing everything else of a local nature. The characters become more numerous and excited, and the place deepens and increases in interest as the play approaches the fifth act. I have no office to lose, and do not expect to gain one by the defeat or success of either candidate; therefore I am not strictly considered one of the dramatic persons; only an idle looker-on in Venice, and can therefore judge more impartially of the skill, and comparative merits of the actors. There is a big meeting to-night at Shafter's Hall, in the upper wards, of those favorable to the re-election of the present incumbent, at which the veritable General himself, is to act the part of Brutus, although he is no orator as Brutus is. The parties are so nearly divided, that I cannot pretend to speculate upon the chances of either of the candidates; but before my next agony will be over, and I shall be able to give you the result of the polls.

The fall trade is opening, with every prospect of an active and spirited business season. One extreme is apt to follow another—the summer has been unusually dull, and hence the fall and winter will be unusually brisk and lively. The wholesale facilities of our market have very much increased, and it is confidently predicted by several of the "oldest inhabitants" that the business in that line, for the approaching season, will exceed, by at least one third, that of any previous one. A large number of country merchants who have been in the habit of going north for their goods, are now sending their orders to be filled in Charleston, confident that they can lay in their stocks on equally as favorable terms, as they could in a more distant market.

Methodist Church, South.

The following missionary intelligence gives some idea of the extent of the efforts of this denomination to spread the gospel. The labors in behalf of the negro population, furnish an instructive commentary on the slanders and assaults upon the institution, and from which our northern neighbors should learn to judge us less harshly.

Methodist Church, South.

The following missionary intelligence gives some idea of the extent of the efforts of this denomination to spread the gospel. The labors in behalf of the negro population, furnish an instructive commentary on the slanders and assaults upon the institution, and from which our northern neighbors should learn to judge us less harshly.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has a promising Christian mission, supported at considerable expense.

They have also ten missions among the Germans; seven missionaries, 332 members, and 183 Sabbath school scholars.

In the Indian work they have 31 missions, 27 missionaries, 4,477 members, 1,261 scholars in schools, 489 Sabbath school scholars.

There are twenty missions in California, thus forming a conference.

The following are the annual contributions from 1846 to the year 1852 inclusive:

1846.....$64,529
1847.....73,997
1848.....62,613
1849.....65,494
1850.....85,979
1851.....113,801
1852.....120,000

From the foregoing it will be seen that the contributions, in the space of seven years, have nearly doubled.

To the destitute portions of the regular work there are 136 missions, 22,573 white members; 1,923 colored members, and 3,089 Sunday school scholars.

There are among the colored people in the South 120 missions, 111 missionaries, 38,785 colored members, 700 white members, and 16,385 children and adults receiving religious instruction on the great principles of the Christian religion.

More missionaries are much wanted. Recruiting the South mission in South Carolina. Rev. W. C. Kirkland says: "The owners, and particularly the patrons of the mission, are generally religious, and they esteem it a part of their religion to afford their people the means of religious instruction. They have their clergy and infirm sent to the church. I have never known Christian owners more zealous in the good cause. I find, among our patrons, Colonel L. Morris and C. Baring, Esq., who were the pioneers in this work, and whose zeal has not diminished by time."

Rev. W. H. Crenshaw, of Baton Rouge, La., writes that he found Baptists and Methodists among the slaves, who were brought from the more northern States many years since, and who had held out their hands to the Gospel, and made good progress in disseminating their doctrines among the Creole or Catholic negroes. He gives, too, a very lively description of a negro marriage, which was accompanied by great display of the property of the bride and groom, and a large number of guests.

The Sabbath morning after the wedding, I had a very large audience of blacks, and our meeting was a happy one. The whites attended with their slaves, and all were apparently interested.

Incidents Connected with the Collision on Lake Erie.—Capt. Felty, of the Atlantic, while lowering a life-boat, fell a distance of eleven feet into the boat, striking his head and cutting it badly. He was precipitated into the water and supposed to be lost, but was picked up by a boat from the propeller after clinging for fifteen minutes to floating pieces of timber. He is now injured, and now lies in Erie, in a precarious state.

Mr. Dana, who was lost, was very efficient in saving the lives of passengers, and exhibited the most heroic and self-sacrificing courage. The last persons taken from the boat were Mr. Givan, clerk of the boat, and Mr. Buell, first engineer. The steamer had then sunk all but her stern, and they, with some Illinois passengers, were on a raft, and were about to be rescued by the propeller, loaded to the waters edge with rescued passengers, and Givan hailed them, and entreated them to save the boy. Mr. Blodgett, first mate of the Atlantic, who was on board, saw the raft, and ran to the rope, took the boy off and returned to the boat with him. He was thus saved.

The little fellow was from Massachusetts, and was with his uncle, who was drowned. His name was not recollected by the clerk. The next boat from the propeller took of the clerk, first engineer, and the Illinois passenger.

"The Women."—Here is a "Tribute to Woman," from a note to an editor, the justice of which few will dispute: "There is something about woman that is curious, isn't there? This morning I except the schoolhouse. I thought it a child, almost out of my head, and I was a very poor opinion of my housekeeping powers. I assure you. The stove heated, the wood by the stove—only woman can give. What in creation is it that makes them give such an heir to things?"

Head-reading Catastrophe.

The following particulars of the recent collision on Lake Erie, between the steamer Astoria and the propeller Ogdensburg, on the 20th ult., we gather from various sources:

The loss of life from the Atlantic is estimated at two hundred and fifty persons, while about a like number were taken on board the propeller which was leaking badly, but they succeeded in reaching Erie with her.

The steamer kept on her course, the officers hoping to be able to reach port, although the boat was leaking badly—the water, however, gained rapidly on them, despite the efforts of the crew, and about the time they had proceeded about two miles from the spot where the collision took place, it was found that the vessel was rapidly sinking, the first in the engine room being extinguished by the water.

A very dense fog prevailed at the time of the collision.

The passengers were all in bed, and the first mate was the only one who remained on deck. Immediately after the collision, which was very severe, the utmost confusion prevailed amongst the steerage and deck passengers, a very large portion of whom were Norwegian emigrants, and several it is thought in the terror and darkness that prevailed, jumped overboard at once.

Captain Pelley, although seriously injured, with the assistance of the crew, endeavored to calm the fears of the passengers, assuring them that there was no danger.

The cabin passengers and all who could be made to understand, were exhorted by the captain and officers to remain calm and provide themselves with chairs, seats, beds, &c., all of which were carried life-preservers, and would buoy them up in the water. Numbers however, unheeding and not understanding the advice given them rushed overboard to certain death.

At about half-past two o'clock, amidst the wailing shrieks of the passengers the steamer settled and sunk. The propeller had kept in the wake of the Atlantic, and those on board had all in their power to preserve the lives of the hundreds of human beings who were now seen struggling in the water.

The fog was a sad hindrance to their efforts, but some 250 were rescued from the Lake, and taken by the propeller to Erie. A large number left at once on the Sultana for Cleveland; others came down in the cars this morning.

How many are lost it is impossible at present to say, but it is thought the loss has been principally confined to the poor emigrants, who, although life was as precious to them as to the wealthier of our citizens, will not leave so many amongst us to lament their untimely deaths.

The emigrants were Norwegians, who came through by Lake Ontario steamers from Quebec, and about 75 or 80 of them were left on the dock, the rest refusing to suffer them to go on board. They now mourn the loss of their friends. There is reason to hope many may yet be saved on life preservers, with which the boat was well supplied.

An Express Company had about $5,000 in money on board the boat.

ERIE, Aug. 20, p. m.—The steamer Clinton has returned from the wreck of the Atlantic. She reports her entire disappearance, and sunk in twenty-five fathoms of water. The boat belonged to Master W. A. Owens, of the Caspian, and was last seen at Cleveland. She was valued at $80,000, and was not insured.

Among the incidents of the calamity are the following.—Mr. Aaron Sutton of New York City, arrived with two life preservers—one of which he fastened on his wife, and while so doing, some one snatched the other one away. Mr. Sutton seeing the boat sinking, got his wife off into the lake, and taking his two little children followed her. Mrs. Sutton was buoyed up by the life preserver, and partially by swimming, and clinging to floating articles. Mr. Sutton preserved his children, until all were picked up by boats.

One young lady jumped from the steamer and was seen to have been drowned but for the exertions of a man, (supposed to be one of the emigrants) who seeing a board, plunged into the water, and catching hold of the lady's hair managed to get her into the side of the steamer; who was taken on deck, the poor fellow sank from exhaustion and was drowned.

Three hands of the steamer who could not swim tore off the pinnace boat, took out the compass and throwing the box overboard, jumped into the water and were drowned. It is thought several times were compelled for self-preservation to kick from them drowning men and women some 30 or 40 of whom at different times had hold of their legs—they were taken up after being 20 minutes in the water, by their own boat at the same time they found the body of a little girl, 10 years old floating on a plank—she had her arm around the plank and her head on it as if a sleep but she was quite dead. The body was taken to Erie.

Mr. L. D. Crippen of Michigan, saved two persons by breaking through the deck into their state rooms, which were filling with water.

Sub-Marine Telegraph between Europe and North America.—The London correspondence of the National Intelligence has the following notice of a new plan of Sub-marine telegraph: "We yesterday heard the particulars of a new and very promising project to establish a submarine telegraph between Great Britain and the continent of North America. The transit of this telegraph will be throughout its entire length, as well as at its commencement and its termination, on a route which no former project has even alluded to. The obstacles to its execution are few and easily surmounted. Careful calculations have been made, which show that the expense will not exceed one-fourth part of the most moderate preceding estimate. The liability to accident and derangement will be very small, and when they do occur, they can be easily and promptly remedied. This project will unite every point in North America with every point in Europe which is at present reached by the electric telegraph and an eastern arm of the projected sub-marine telegraph will bring the nations of Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Russia into connection with all the lines of telegraphic dispatch by their respective capitals: Bergen, Stockholm, Copenhagen, and St. Petersburg. This eastern arm, is of course, to be constructed by a separate and additional capital. The British Government approve of the plan, and many scientific and practical men, to whom it has been submitted, entertain no doubt of its success. We hope in the course of a week or two to send you a chart of its intended route, with particulars of plans, estimates, &c. Should this idea be carried out, and we proceed to reason why it should not, there will be an almost instantaneous communication established between nearly every principal place in North America and Europe. What will the science and perseverance of the age attempt next?"

The Cotton Markets.

CHESTER, Aug. 31.

Very little cotton has been offered in this market for the last week, owing in part to the unfavorable weather and partly to the fact the old crop is already pretty generally sold. The market sustains itself fully and we quote extremes at 8 to 10.50.

COLUMBIA, August 30.

Report of the week ending Monday Aug. 30. It will be recollected that our last weekly report closed on a very brisk and active market, at 104 cents for fair. During this week, just brought to a close, the market has been somewhat less active, and in some instances prices turned 1/4 to 1/2 cent in favor of the buyer. The supply on sale during the week, has been light, but in consequence of the dull and drooping state of the Charleston and New York markets, our market

EAVES' Grist and Saw Mills. THE WHEAT AND CORN MILLS of the subscriber, on Fishing Creek, have undergone thorough repairs; in which have been added new and improved Smutting and Boling machinery, (the castings having been discarded.) His dam is new and tight, so as to furnish at all times an abundance of water.

The hands attached to the Mill are steady and careful, and the whole is under the superintendence of a regular mechanic, who is thoroughly skilled in the business of managing mills. He feels confident, therefore, that all who give the Mills a trial, will receive satisfaction.

The Saw Mill has also been re-fitted. He is also adding to the Mills.
